

Office of the Navajo Public Defender

Could you be a Navajo Public Defender?

If you are smart, creative, self-motivated, and tough, keep reading. The Office of the Navajo Public Defender has several openings for courageous lawyers with an unwavering commitment to justice. As a Navajo Public Defender, you will defend the civil and Fundamental rights of indigent Navajos in the largest indigenous court system in North America. You will have ample opportunities to develop your strategic and tactical trial toolbox as you represent adults and juveniles in all types of criminal and delinquency proceedings from arraignment to appeal. And you will work closely with individual clients and superb colleagues to optimize your service to this unique community. Indigent Navajos face fierce odds, they deserve fierce lawyers. Medical, dental, optical.

Senior Attorney, J.D., four or more years' experience, state bar license in good standing, must become barred in either NM, AZ, or UT within one year of hire, and must pass the Navajo Nation Bar within one year of hire. Compensation starting at $84,261.68/annum, DOE. Open Until Filled.

Staff Attorney, J.D., state bar license in good standing, must become barred in either NM, AZ, or UT within one year of hire, and must pass the Navajo Nation Bar within one year of hire. Compensation DOE. Open Until Filled.

Senior Tribal Court Advocate, BS or BA degree, three years' experience as an advocate in the Navajo Nation Courts, and member in good standing of the Navajo Nation Bar Association. Compensation starting at $51,865.92/ annum, DOE. Open Until Filled.

Download and complete the Navajo Nation Application here: dpm.navajo-nsn.gov/jobs.html.

Send Navajo Nation Application, Cover Letter, and Resumé directly to:

kathleenbowman@navajo-nsn.gov.